PROFILE

Born and raised in Waikanae, New Zealand life started out pretty regularly for Jub during his first 23 years. Having completed university and working the corporate life for two years, Jub decided to make travel a priority. Since March 2013 he has been on the road, working a variety of jobs, watching sports whenever possible, sharing experiences, and living in half a dozen countries.

ABOUT TIKI TOURING KIWI

Having visited 53 countries in a variety of travel styles from third class trains on the Trans-Siberian, in a private camper van through Western Europe to 5-star hotel stays and everything in between Jub noticed sport is the one constant around the world that can connect people like nothing else.

Not worried to make a fool of himself, his motto for 2018 is:

"Explore the world of sports"

With a trend towards long content (2000+ words), there's useful travel information from Europe, Southeast Asia, and New Zealand. Most of the content published focuses on sports or day hikes he has made. Posts are comprehensive, unbiased, honest, useful & enjoyable for readers.

Leilani TODAY

Hi Jub! Just wanted to thank you so much for your New Zealand blog! I recently just returned home to Hawaii from New Zealand, and your tips helped a lot! I traveled to the South Island as I was limited on time, but I had a blast! Happy travels! 🏆
